

RANCHO FRESHLY SQUEEZED LIME JUICE CORDIAL

This lime juice cordial looks a bit confused. The bottle has a classy wax cork-style plug, but the label looks like the poster for a Bindi Irwin movie, or something Billabong might make into a range of boardies. But as I always say, don't judge a cordial by the bottle what it be in. There is nothing confused about this juice. All the limes are grown in the hinterlands of Byron Bay, and it really does taste like quality. "When you're this good, you can wear anything you want." That's what I'd say if I was this lime juice and lime juice could talk. It also has a handwritten use-by date on the bottle, which for some unknown reason I found to be really rather classy.
